"THE TIGRESS" VITAGRAPH,
THEATORIUM TUESDAY

Julia Swayne Gordon, in the title role in this photo drama, is a sort of superwoman in the perpetration of evil. Then, too, she has a few good qualities, but they are pretty well smothered by the more aggressive side of her forceful nature. She resists her husband, a gang leader, in robbing a judge's home where she is employed as nurse, and when her husband is killed she takes charge of the gang herself, meanwhile retaining the judge's son, whom she rescued from the burning house. Having reached maturity, the son knows nothing of the woman's professional career and naturally believes her to be his mother; that is, until the cleverest of clever detectives unravels a crime and with it the fabric of deceit surrounding "The Tigress" life. Always ready to do the dramatically correct thing, she swallows poison.

Mrs. Gordon gives a capital performance. Leo Delaney makes a properly astute detective, and other characters are adequately portrayed in a picture produced with the care customary in Vitagraph offerings.

On Tuesday also, the two greatest comedians appearing before the camera will be seen here. Needless to say, they are Chas. Chaplin and Billie Ritchie. This will make an exceptionally strong program for this day.

A Wonderful Antiseptic
Germs and infection aggravate ailments and retard healing. Stop that infection at once. Kill the germs and get rid of the poisons. For this purpose a single application of Sloan's Liniment not only kills the pain but destroys the germs. This neutralizes infection and gives nature assistance by overcoming congestion and gives a chance for the free and normal flow of the blood. Sloan's Liniment is an emergency doctor and should be kept constantly on hand. 25c, 50c. The $1.00 size contains six times as much as the 25c.

MARGARITA FISHER IN
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE

"The Lonesome Heart" is a delightful drama of youth, humor, spirit and romance. The principal part of the orphan, Samantha, is acted with sympathetic charm by Margarita Fisher, who has the good fortune to be associated with such talented players as Lucille Ward, William A. Carroll, Joseph E. Singleton and Robyn Adair. The play has the thrill of tingling adventure with a fascinating thread of mystery that will hold you spellbound until the very end.

Most of the scenes in this newest Mutual Masterpicture have the natural background of forest, hill and stream, and the result is a succession of pictures that are complete in artistic excellence and realistic detail. But what is far more important, the play is not only superior as a photo production, it is wonderfully acted by a company of stars of first dramatic rank. You will thoroughly enjoy it. It is such motion pictures that mark the triumph of the "silent drama."

Friday, Geo. Kleine presents the great laughing success, "Who's Who in Society," with a cast of noted Broadway stars and it is a comedy of the sort that most folks like to see. No slapstick comedy, but clean, wholesome humor. Some surprises are in store for majestic patrons, due notice of which will appear in these columns.

When Baby Has the Croup
When a mother is awakened from sound sleep to find her child who has gone to bed apparently in the best of health struggling for breath, she is naturally alarmed. Yet if she can keep her presence of mind and give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy every ten minutes until vomiting is produced, quick relief will follow and the child will drop to sleep to awaken in the morning as well as ever. This remedy has been in use for many years with uniform success. Obtainable everywhere.

A Solemn Subject.
"I wonder why crape is the emblem of sorrow?" queried the young widow. "Probably because three feet of it represents a graveyard," replied the fussy old bachelor.

For Indigestion.
Never take pepsin and preparations containing pepsin or other digestive ferments for indigestion, as the more you take, the more you will have to take. What is needed is a tonic like Chamberlain's Tablets that will enable the stomach to perform its functions naturally. Obtainable everywhere.

HIGH COST OF FIRE WASTE

Is the Cause of Much of the High Cost of Living

Our fire waste is in a measure responsible for the high cost of living, for it merges with the cost of everything we eat, drink and wear. Year after year $250,000,000 worth of buildings and merchandise are wasted by fire; therefore it is easy to see that the very foundation of our commerce is being consumed by the "fire god." Tomorrow you may read of another San Francisco or Baltimore conflagration. Can we stand such loss in the present condition of our financial affairs? The financial depression throughout this country is put at the door of the war, but can we not, to a large extent, trace this back to 1906 and 1907 when between two or three hundred millions of securities were thrown on the market by insurance companies to meet the payment of losses? Another conflagration, such as at San Francisco, at this time would cause the worst panic of modern times, place a majority of manufacturing and financial institutions in the hands of receivers, throw thousands out of employment and cause untold hardships and suffering.

In the past we have at least been fortunate in having the big conflagrations occur in periods of mild weather. Picture, if you can, the terrible sufferings and loss of life at a conflagration in one of our large cities in the dead of winter; of blind, sick and dying, the aged and the infants driven from their homes, grand or humble as they may be, to face the wintry blasts in one mass of fleeing humanity. Let every man, woman and child become a committee of one to fight against such a catastrophe. Start now to clean up your home, the office, your place of business; discuss the subject with your family, employees and business associates; give the "fire prevention" just a fraction of the time given to the discussion of the war and watch the results and effects.

TOWNS SHOULD TAKE NOTICE

Every fire insurance man knows that a large number of disastrous fires in towns and villages are caused by the burning of trash, paper, and other combustibles on the street and in the alleys, and that but a limited number of cities and towns have made any provision whatever for the safeguarding, either by ordinance or otherwise, of the property of the town from such fires.

In some places merchants use wire fencing, filling a container constructed from such fencing with paper, etc., and setting it afire. The charred paper will blow around the street and into areaways, possibly still burning. Any way such makeshifts are viewed they are dangerous.

In other places old discarded steam boilers are set on end and the merchant fills the shells with paper and rubbish, setting it afire at the top. The heat causes a draft, and the wind whips around, scattering the burning material and embers all over town.

But merchants and property owners are realizing that the burning of paper and rubbish is a danger that must be safeguarded. Some municipalities compel the burning of paper, etc., in brick or concrete receptacles especially constructed for the purpose, either by the city or individuals, as the wisdom of the city council may decide.—Hartford Agent.

FIRE LOSS A TAX

A tax of $3 a year to pay for what we burn is a heavy one. It is equivalent to $15 a year for the head of each family of four or five. The United States Geological Survey, in its fire bulletin covering the fire losses for a single year, 1907, figures that on actual property losses of $215,084,709 for that year, the people really paid a tax of $456,485,000, because of the excessive premiums over insurance paid, and the heavy cost of fire protection due to bad construction. This tax exceeded the total value of the gold, silver, copper, and petroleum produced in the country in that year. To emphasize the loss more specifically, the buildings consumed, if placed on lots of 65 feet front, would line both sides of a street extending from New York to Chicago. This enormous street of desolation and ruin would be filled with the head and disabled. At every thousand feet there would be an injured person, and every three-quarters of a mile the charred remains of one killed by fire.

All the fire loss is final, absolute, and irrecoverable—not one dollar of it ever "comes back." It is ever restored or replaced. It is a direct and heavy tax, averaging $15 per year for every family, and for this sum not the slightest thing is received in return.

THIS MEANS YOU

Every householder should make a personal inspection of his residence and other buildings for the discovery of possible fire dangers.

Look at the chimneys, especially at this season of the year. Has the mortar in the upper parts decayed either from the action of the weather or gases from the fuel used? Defective chimneys are a frequent cause of fires at this time, and are always a menace. How do you dispose of ashes? Never let ashes come in contact with wood, even though they are apparently cold. Is there any rubbish lying around awaiting only a spark to start a fire. Look at your gas connections and remove that rubber hose, if you are using one.

If electricity is used, examine the wiring. See that stovepipes do not pass through wooden partitions or come near wood at any point.

Not Very Comforting.
Mark Twain at a dinner at the Authors' club said: "Speaking of fresh eggs, I am reminded of the town of Squash. In my early lecturing days I went to Squash to lecture in Temperance hall, arriving in the afternoon. The town seemed very poorly billed. I thought I'd find out if the people knew anything at all about what was in store for them. So I turned in at the general store. 'Good afternoon, friend,' I said to the general storekeeper. 'Any entertainment here tonight to help a stranger while away his evening?' The general storekeeper, who was sorting mackerels, straightened up, wiped his briny hands on his apron and said: 'I expect there's goin' to be a lecture. I seen sellin' eggs all day.'"

Secret of Laughter.
"The secret of laughter is in the return to nature. Civilization and culture are late additions and we are living to a great extent in artificial conditions. Psychology makes plain the fact that our present mental equipment has been slowly and painfully acquired and a certain strain in maintaining that high altitude is inevitable. This tension is relieved by nonsense and by the portrayal in humorous anecdotes and on the stage of evasions of convention and infractions of the prevailing code of morals and manners.

Perfumes Prevent Nausea.
A New York physician reports that he has been very successful in preventing the nausea so apt to follow an anesthetic by the application to the nostrils of the patient of a pleasant perfume, preferably oil of bitter orange peel, as the ether or chloroform is discontinued. He elevates the patient's head a little and turns it to one side, fastening a little adhesive plaster to the tip of the nose and saturating this with cologne. Or if the patient has a mustache the perfume may be placed on that. He says the result is not always efficacious in preventing nausea after the anesthetic, but in many cases it is.

Which Makes a Difference.
"The only thing I can find to say against you, Jane," said her mistress, "is that your washing bill is far too much. Last week you had six waists in the wash. Why, my own daughter never needs more than three."

Jane—"Ah, that may be, mum, but I have to. Your daughter's sweetheart is a bank clerk, while my young man is a chimney sweep. It makes a difference, mum."
